Does character education actually help in academics?

Yes, character education can greatly help students with their academic subjects as well. Diligence and a sense of responsibility are some of the main core values taught in character education. With these students will learn how to focus on their studies, and more importantly they will have the drive that will make them want to do well in their academic subjects. Building character also helps them to interact properly with their teachers and fellow students, turning their classroom into a better learning environment.

At Brookwood Middle School, we focus on Building and Modeling Success and have a creed we live by: Participation, Responsibility, Integrity, Dedication, and Effort are five key elements that help me be successful. It is up to me to participate appropriately, to be responsible for my words and actions, to do the right thing, to be dedicated to my opportunities, and to put forth the effort needed to be successful.
